Tech Tip

The end of the school year is rapidly approaching. I have a lot of information to share in this week's tech tip - everything from Mac OS Spring Updates to end of the year project ideas!

Hold on tight! Here we go...

Mac Updates: I will be available to assist with updates at Twining on May 8th in the afternoon. I have attached an update checklist and slides. However, I do have the updates on an external drive and 3 elementary teachers are going to try using the updates from the drive before Wednesday. If you feel comfortable doing the updates on your own, go ahead. If not, know that I will be here to help. For this process you will get an email from Mary Tingberg, you will need this email to either download or verify your Office suite. Please keep this email.

End of the Year Movie ideas: Looking for a unique or different end of the year movie project? Click HERE to get 10 ideas for classroom video project that could be completed by students.

Great Site: I stumbled across this awesome site when reading the EdTech Community Blog. It has all kinds of resources for teachers! Here is the awesome material available for Digital Literacy!

Spotlight

This week's Spotlight on Strategies is.... Table Top Texting

Charts a teaching strategy requiring students to think critically about, and discuss, a video segment.

Students use a texting format on paper to communicate with one other about video content. Here is a Digital Version of Table Top Texting I have used with Mr. Quinn's classes.
